

MORNING APPEAL
THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1

THE ATTACK ON MACK.

A COMPLETE REFUTATION
OF THE TRIBUNE'S AR-TICLE OF LAST EVENING.

Mr. Mack Makes a Clear and Explicit Statement of the Facts in the Case.

Last evening the Tribune contained a three-column article relative to Mr. Chas. Mack, candidate for Judge of the First Judicial district. Mr. Mack merely smiled when he read the Tribune story and said that it would be a very heavy article if the body of it justified the sensational headings.

"In regard to this matter," continued Mr. Mack, "the explanation is a very simple one. In this case J. M. Douglass and the Goodman Mining Company were plaintiffs, represented by F. M. Huffaker, Esq., and J. L. Wines, Esq., and the defendants were the Contact, Atlantic Consolidated, Annie, Red Jacket, South End and the Clinton Mining Claims, represented by W. E. F. Deal, Esq., and the referees were Judge E. Strother, Chairman, General R. P. Keating and myself.

During the investigation of this matter by the referees, which lasted nearly two months, W. A. Brown, lessee of the South End Mining Company, one of the defendants in this case, brought a replevin suit against the Red Jacket, another of the defendants, and Mr. A. J. Taylor, to determine the ownership of a quantity of ore extracted on or near the adjoining end lines of the South End and Red Jacket claims, the ore at that time being in possession of the defendant, Mr. A. J. Taylor. Neither of the plaintiffs had any interest whatever in the controversy between the two defendants. The Red Jacket Company, if I remember correctly, telegraphed to me to defend it, and A. J. Taylor in the Brown suit, and F. M. Huffaker, Esq., attorney for J. M. Douglass, was the attorney for Brown, the lessee of the South End Company.

I informed the other referees and the attorneys in the same case, of my employment, and on the day of the trial of the Silver City case in the latter part of March, the Douglass case was postponed from eleven o'clock A. M. until four o'clock P. M. to enable Major Huffaker and myself to go to Silver City, and try the Brown Red Jacket case before Justice Blackburn. Major Huffaker and myself hired a buggy rode to Silver City together, tried the case and then returned to Virginia City together. It never occurred to my mind but what I had a perfect right to defend the Red Jacket in the suit brought by Mr. W. H. Brown, or that it would in any way interfere with my acting as referee in the Douglass suit, nor was it ever suggested to me by any one of the attorneys in the case or by either of the other referees. In fact so far as I know, it was not thought of by any of them at that time, and had it occurred to my mind, or had it been suggested I would have withdrawn immediately from the Douglass case and refused to act further as referee. The question never entered my mind until it was brought to my attention in June I think, by Major Huffaker, after the report of the referees was filed and the question raised in Judge Hawley's court. It is said that after having practiced law for the past thirteen years, I should not have made this error, if error it was. In this there may possibly be some ground for criticism, but even Courts as well as attorneys make mistakes; none are infallible. For instance in the Regent case, Judge Rising, after having the question of the constitutionality of the law making the Governor and Attorney General ex-officio Regents, under advisement over two months, held the law to be constitutional, but the Supreme Court overruled his decision and held his ruling to be an error. Now in this matter my political opponents in their desperation to defeat my candidacy for District Judge, claim that I should not have made a mistake, if such it was, in a matter that did not occur to my mind and was never even suggested to me by any one of the attorneys in the Douglass matter.

I concurred with general Keating in the report because I thought it was right, and as the greater part of the damages were assessed for the ore extracted from the mining claims of defendants and dumped into the waste dump, when by a little effort Mr. Douglass could have placed it in an ore dump and saved it for defendants. I arrived at my estimate by taking an average of all the assay value of the ore extracted by Mr. Douglass submitted in evidence by both parties to the investigation. No one who has known me for any length of time, will claim that as referee, I was animated by any other than the purest motives and if there was any error, it was an error of the head and not of the heart.

I have thrown no mud at Mr. Rising, and in all my addresses to the people I have not mentioned his name. If Judge Rising's ill-advised friends insist upon a personal fight, I will not pause a moment before entering into such a contest.

TWO GREAT SPEECHES.

The APPEAL surrenders much of its space to-day to the speeches of Senator Jones and General Warner. Owing to an engagement at Gold Hill last evening, Senator Jones did not speak as advertised, and the evening was occupied by General Warner, President of the Binmetallic League of the United States.

The APPEAL however, prints Jones' Winnemucca speech, as the two speeches to be effective, must be read side by side.

In fact in reading them one is reminded that the Silver party of Nevada at the present time is like an ocean greyhound driven by triple expansion engines, plowing its powerful course through the waves, driven by twin screw propellers, and Jones and Warner the propellers. The ship is now racing in a trial trip and the election of the Silver ticket its premium for extra speed. With Jones and Warner the propelling power, Newlands on the bridge, J. E. Jones at the helm, and the best selected officers and crew that ever trod a quarter deck, the destination of the craft can no longer remain in doubt.

Any silver man who reads these speeches will have ten reasons for the faith that is in him where he had one before, and any Republican who reads them, and is not converted, holds a stubbornness that is not either faith or religion but is a blind and idiotic fetish worship of that which is beyond the reach of reason.
